Background info for the teacher of the online course:

Sexual harassment – it comes at a cost

The aim of the course

This course is meant to give the participants insight into the vast array of economic consequences of sexual harassment and the ways in which the psychological consequences of sexual harassment are closely linked to the economic costs. Focusing on the economic consequences of sexual harassment – both when it comes to the individual, a company and society – is important because the economic aspect can be used as an effective argument or motivator for companies to start actively preventing and dealing with sexual harassment.

Therefore, the aim of this course is to motivate the participants to start actively preventing and dealing with sexual harassment – or to make the participants motivated to take these economic arguments to their boss and argue for the importance of working with sexual harassment in their workplace. How to prevent and deal with sexual harassment is also touched upon, however this is not the main focus of this exact course.

About the PowerPoint:

The entire course is contained in the PowerPoint which consists of 11 slides.

Everything that is thought relevant for the teacher to say about each slide is written out in the note below each slide. The text in the notes that are in squared parenthesis [] is meant as a note to the teacher.

Exercise

At the end of the course the participants will get a small five-question quiz. The aim of the quiz is to see how much of the course's learnings have stuck with the participants and to reiterate some of the most important learnings.

Estimated time of the course:

Around 1 hour
